

Covering Islam on Main Street: How Foreign Crises Have Become a Domestic News Story

Part of Understanding Muslim Societies

A program of the World Affairs Councils of America with support provided by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York

Tuesday, September 30, 2014

7:30 - 9:30 p.m.

McQuade Law Auditorium
University of Toledo

Featuring Dr. Lawrence Pintak
Professor and Founding Dean
The Edward R. Murrow College of Communication

“News is 24/7 and global. That means international stories have local implications – especially for American Muslims. But most local news reporters don’t have the background or context to report the local angles to these stories. The result is that stereotypes and misconceptions are often exacerbated.” Lawrence Pintak is co-editor of an online guide for reporters covering “Islam on Main Street.”

